

Back in Control

Five years ago, James and Patti Prowse asked for a home automation system they could run with a single remote. The end result, installed by Control4 dealer Audio-Video Alternatives, was a fully automated home controlled by the Control4 interface via any TV in the home. Their custom system now includes a multi-room audio and video system divided into 20 different zones throughout the home.

Using the Control4 System Remote, the Prowses can view or listen to multiple entertainment sources throughout their home, including their player piano. Even if they head outdoors, homeowners and guests can enjoy the benefits of their automated audio system. The Prowse system also centralizes their DVD collection and cable box, delivering content throughout the 20 zones in the home from one location.

In addition to home-wide automation, the Prowses wanted a system that performed like a high-end system without the cost of extensive programming or ongoing overhead for maintenance. "I just love the system and simple interface," said Prowse. "Nothing on the market compares and solves all my problems. The Control4 solution and Audio-Video Alternatives exceeded my expectations."
